Hightrees House comprises a 4-storey 1930s Art Deco block; it is reached after a 1-minute walk from Clapham South tube station along Nightingale Lane, a lane that runs from Clapham South to Wandsworth Common rail station and Bellevue Road.

Clapham South tube is located, effectively, at the junction of the A24 and A205 (South Circular) roads; the A24 at Clapham South is known as Balham Hill while the A205 at Clapham South is known as Poynders Road; a branch of Poynders Road - which runs towards Streatham - becomes Cavendish Road, which runs parallel to Balham Hill.

Fosters Mill is part of premises called Fosters, located off a cul-de-sac called Duck Street. Duck Street serves North End Farm and is located at the foot of Sutton Veny's long downwards-sloping High Street. Visitors to Duck Street and Fosters Mill (a building that has an ochre exterior) will pass The Woolpack pub at the top of the High Street, and pass the village's school and church on their left. Part of Fosters contains a tumulus, a pre-historic feature marked on maps within Fosters' boundaries.
